Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 14 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly fine with frosty nights but pleasant enough afternoons.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry again, once any evening showers in the southwest fade. Clear periods for most leading to another chilly night, particularly in the east with a fairly widespread, locally sharp frost. The odd fog patch possible further west, mainly Northern Ireland.

Thursday:
Spells of sunshine for most although cloud increasing for many by afternoon, with scattered showers affecting eastern and central England. Chilly in the breezier east, warmest in the north.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Fine and settled for many with sunny spells, becoming a little warmer by day though still cold overnight. Turning cloudier and breezier in the north and west with some rain.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.